& P. W. CLUB TO SPONSOR LIBRARY

Initial steps toward creating the first public library for the town of Hondo were taken Tuesday night at a regular January meeting of the Hondo Business and Professional Women's Club when that organization accepted the donation of the books, book racks and cases of the Hondo USO Club. The local USO is closing Jan. 31 and the gift of books was made to the Hondo Community Center, which is in process of being organized, with the understanding that a local civic club take over the responsibility of the USO library. The B. & P. W. Club voted to assume this responsibility and to contribute toward the Community Center, which has as its prime motive the establishment of a recreation center for the youth of Hondo and outlying communities. Details for the management of the library must necessarily be postponed until more definite arrangements for the Center have been made.

A number of books also have been donated by Hondo Army Air Field. Mrs. Homer Wilson, B. & P. W. Club representative in the organization of 14 local civic, youth and educational clubs working toward securing the Center, reported on a recent meeting of that group at which time a financial committee was appointed to devise means for raising funds.

Following the business meeting, Mrs. Marguerite Murrill and Mrs. J. Gilliland, hostesses for the social hour, served a salad course and cokes.

Hostesses for the February meeting will be Mrs. F. H. Hollmig and Miss Mary Agnes Hubbard.

LIONS HONOR GRID CHAMPIONS

The Lions Club of Hondo honored the Hondo High School football squad, champions of Regional 14, and the Pep Squad, at a banquet at the school gym on Jan. 10. One hundred and fifty people sat down at the tables arranged in a V-shape to commensurate the winning of the Regional Championship by the Hondo team.

Lion President R. C. Rath introduced the master of ceremonies, Lion Hons Richards. Mr. Richards introduced Mr. Tom Bridges, Hondo coach. Lion Bridges complimented the boys on their fine showing and their splendid cooperation. He then introduced the team to the assemblage as well as those honored by being given places on District teams. Co-Capt. Arthur Dawson and Miss Renie Gilliam of the Pep Squad expressed their appreciation for the banquet and the supper of the Lions Club. Miss Thelma Renslee, faculty advisor, was called upon for a few words as was Major F. W. Sheffield, Commanding Officer of Hondo Army Air Field. Mr. Richards then presented the trophy, emblematic of the championship of District 37-A, to the co-captains, Arthur Dawson and Gerald Britsch.

The two guests of the evening were Mr. Bib Falk, baseball coach, and Mr. Clyde Littlefield, track coach of the University of Texas. Following their brief talks, motion pictures were shown of the Cotton Bowl game between the University of Texas and the University of Missouri.

Mr. Tom Bridges was presented a plaque by Lion President Rath for his outstanding work.

NEW GUINEA MISSIONARY TO SPEAK AT ST. PAUL'S

A veteran of six years missionary work in New Guinea, Rev. George L. Hueter of Napoleon, Ohio, will address members of the American Lutheran Churches in this community in St. Paul's Lutheran on Jan. 24, 1946, at 7:30. He was also away the sound motion picture, "Tiwon," recently filmed in New Guinea.

The coming of Rev. Hueter in this community is in the interest of the program of "Foreign Mission Reconstruction and Development," through which the American Lutheran Church expects to make available three-quarters of a million dollars for rebuilding war-damaged facilities in New Guinea and India. Having served as a missionary for six years, he knows conditions in our mission fields.

Rev. Hueter, a native of Riga, Mich., and served as missionary in N. G. from 1926 through 1932, was president of the Finisterre district.

In addition to his address, Rev. Hueter will show a sound motion picture, "Tiwon," which means "His Power." It was photographed by Chaplain (Major) Arnold M. Maahs, who was stationed with the Army in New Guinea and took that opportunity to examine the church's mission installations. Upon his return to this country, Chaplain Maahs took his film to Hollywood, where music, sound effects and his own narration were added.

The neighboring congregations of Castroville, Quibi and Knippa and their pastors are cordially invited to attend.

Norman Weathersby, manager of the Weathersby Chevrolet Company at Lexington, Miss., where he "wheels and deals" for profit and serves his city as mayor just because it is in the nature of a Mississippi to run to politics, and his brother Roy Weathersby, business man and rancher of Elmendorf, Texas, were visitors to Hondo during the week. They like Hondo—so well, in fact, that the latter contemplates becoming a citizen of the town.

Among the recent changes in the business section of Hondo is that of the Western Auto Associate Store. H. W. Kollman has moved his store from its former location on Bandera Avenue to the building on courthouse square formerly occupied by the Bob Cat Grill. A. C. Clements, who owned the cafe, sold his furniture and fixtures to an out-of-town buyer and the cafe has ceased to exist. We understand the REA has leased the Laughinghouse Bldg. vacated by Mr. Kollman to be used as a store room.

A second performance of "Carmen" with the same cast will close the Festival Sunday afternoon, Feb. 24. Tickets for the Festival are now on sale. Mail orders are being handled through the San Antonio Symphony office, 209 Travis Bldg.

COUNTY TRANSFERRED TO SAN ANTONIO DISTRICT OF TSTA

At a meeting of the executive committee of the Texas State Teachers Association held in Austin Jan. 10, Medina County was transferred from the El Paso District to the San Antonio District of the Texas State Teachers Association.

A petition requesting the transfer had been prepared by S. H. Willis, superintendent of the D'Hanis Public Schools, who obtained the signatures to the petition of a majority of the teachers in Medina County.

This transfer will make it more convenient for the teachers of Medina County to attend their district meetings. It should stimulate more interest in both district and local meetings, and should also cause an increase in the enrollment of Medina County teachers in the Texas State Teachers Association.

DON WINDROW PLANS FIRST HAYS COUNTY SHOW

Four San Marcos business men and civic leaders were in San Antonio Thursday boosting the forthcoming first annual Hays County 4-H Club and F.F.A. Show, which has been set for Jan. 26, and which is being sponsored by the Rotary Club of that city. Merchants and civic and service clubs are cooperating in the plans for the event, which was arranged by Don Windrow, now completing his first year as the Hays County Agricultural Agent.

Windrow announced that the initial showing of livestock by club boys on a county-wide basis would include 18 calves, 14 lambs, several pigs and other entries. An exhibit of work done by 4-H Club girls of the county also will be one of the features of the show.

Much enthusiasm is being shown by the boys in the feeding of the calves, Windrow declared, and the weights of the animals now range from 790 to 1,080 pounds.

George W. Barnes of Texas A. & M. College will judge the calves and M. College will judge the calves and agricultural Agent, will serve as judge of the other entries. Judging will start at 10 a. m. and sale of the animals will be conducted in the afternoon.

Shortly after going to San Marcos a year ago, after serving as County agent for a similar period Windrow began the organization of 4-H Clubs and now has 165 boys enrolled in the clubs throughout the county.

In the group from San Marcos here Thursday, in addition to Windrow, were Dr. J. G. Flowers, president of San Marcos State College, Gene Scrutchins, president of the Rotary Club and Cory Smith, San Marcos business man.—Cattle Clatter.

Don Windrow is a Hondo product, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Windrow.

PLANS BEING COMPLETED FOR FAT STOCK SHOW

Plans are being completed for the fifth annual Medina County 4-H and F.F.A. Fat Stock Show, which will be held at Devine Feb. 27 and 28. Hartley Howard, Devine ranchman, is general manager of the show.

More livestock will be entered this year and the number of exhibitors will be larger than ever before, according to Howard. In addition to the boys' entries, Medina County breeders will also have breeding stock on exhibition. The first day will be devoted to the showing of the animals and the second day will be devoted to auction sale. H. A. Fitzhugh, Bexar County agricultural agent, will judge the animals, and Walter Britten will serve as auctioneer.

Entries include some 65 calves, 30 hogs, 20 lambs and 20 goats, Howard said. Show officials are anticipating good prices this year and perhaps even higher than last year when the fed calves brought an average of 30c per pound, with a top of 65c. No calf was sold at less than 22c.

The show sale was held at Hondo three years but last year it was held at Devine.

COURT UPHOLDS JEHOVAH SECT'S FREEDOM TO HAND OUT TRACTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (UP).—The Supreme Court has ruled that members of the Jehovah's Witnesses sect may distribute religious tracts in both federal and private housing projects.

Justice Hugo L. Black, writing opinions in two cases, held that “neither Congress nor federal agencies may abridge freedom of press and religion safeguarded by the First Amendment.”

Each case was decided by a 5-to-3 vote with Chief Justice Harlan Fiske Stone and Justices Stanley Reed and Harold H. Burton dissenting.

Grace Marsh, a member of Jehovah's Witnesses, was fined $50 in Mobile, Ala., for distributing literature on a housing project owned by the Gulf Shipbuilding Corporation. The Alabama Court of Appeals rejected her appeal. Black said the fact the project is privately owned does not mean that the owner has absolute dominion.

“The more an owner, for his advantage, opens up his property for use by the public in general, and more do his rights become circumscribed by the statutory and constitutional rights of those who use it,” he said.

He wrote that the fact that property rights are held by private citizens “does not justify the state's permitting a corporation to govern a community of citizens so as to restrict their fundamental liberties and the enforcement of such restraint by the application of a state statute.”

He said the second case differed only in that the housing project was owned by the government. It involved A. R. Tucker, a Jehovah's Witness, who was fined $1 for not obtaining a peddler's license for his religious work at the Hondo, Texas, Navigation Village.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST PNEUMONIA

According to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, pneumonia caused over 1,934 deaths during the first ten months of the past year in Texas, a reduction over the previous year but still too high. It is more prevalent during the winter and spring months.

Pneumonia is usually caused by a germ called the pneumococcus, which many of us have lurking in our throats ready to start trouble when our resistance to it is lowered. We can keep up our resistance by avoiding undue fatigue and avoiding unnecessary exposure to extreme weather conditions. When we go out into the cold, additional wraps should be worn, sufficient to protect us. Keeping the temperature of our homes as low as is consistent with comfort will greatly lessen the difficulties encountered in adjusting ourselves to the cold when we get out.

Another method of prevention in pneumonia is not to neglect a for the common cold often results pneumonia when neglected. A person with a severe cold should stay at home, and call his physician for advice if temperature persists or the cold lingers on. He should follow his physician's advice until the cold has disappeared.

The successful treatment of pneumonia case often depends upon starting treatment very early. This is why a physician should be called at once when pneumonia is suspected. A patient may really have beginning pneumonia when he thinks it is only a cold. If the physician's advice is sought, he will have an opportunity to start early if pneumonia occurs in such cases.

From Our Schools Come New Leaders

Agriculture looks forward with confidence to tomorrow because its youth is being trained properly today.

Our United States public school system has taught scientific agriculture to millions of boys and girls in the vocational agriculture courses of nearly 10,000 rural high schools. Here students learn the improvement and proper use of the soil which is our basic wealth; how to produce ton liters of pork in less than six months; the care and repair of farm machinery; and many other vital things.

Such studies create an interest in research and this is important—for scientific research is vital in agriculture and other industries. Science has been back of the development of modern farm machinery; of cows that produce 15,000 pounds of milk; hybrid corn; breeds of beef cattle, hogs and sheep capable of converting feed into meat and fiber economically and speedily. Research in the science of agriculture is a major national resource which has contributed largely to the high standard of American living.

MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS

Bostonians like beef from heavy steers, St. Louisans prefer beef from light ones. It is of interest to livestock producers and meat packers that taste, money-to-spend, seasons, beliefs and habits all affect meat buying customs in different parts of the United States. Our new 16 mm. moving picture sound film, animated and in color, "MEAT BUYING CUSTOMS," explains these differences. Interesting for lodge, grange, school or church shows, and farm and livestock meetings. You pay only transportation one way. Write to Department 128, Swift & Company, Union Stock Yards, Chicago 9, Illinois.

A RECORD TO BEAT

Who will be America's Star Farmer of 1946? He'll have to be good to beat the record of Gordon Eichhorn of Marion County, Ohio, who won this top award of the Future Farmers of America at their 1945 National Convention last fall. A high school freshman in 1939 with one sow, two steers and 26 sheep, Gordon now has 60 hogs, 90 sheep, 1,500 chickens, land and equipment for a total net worth of more than $8,300. He farms his own land, is partner with his dad on 186 acres, and rents from his neighbors 96 acres more on which he raises corn, alfalfa, small grains and clover.

THE EDITOR'S COLUMN

Several times in this space, I have invited producers of agricultural products to come and see us. As a result of this, we have had quite a number of visitors. Conversations with these visitors have been very interesting and helpful to me and have brought out many of the ideas which producers have regarding the livestock and meat industry.

Some recent conversations indicated that quite a number of producers think that there are less than a hundred meat packers in the United States, in fact some thought there were as few as ten. This idea seems to come from the fact that many of them ship their livestock to only one market and are familiar only with the number of meat packing plants at that market. I am sure that it will interest all of you to know that there are more than 3,500 meat packers in the United States. In addition, there are upwards of 22,500 other commercial slaughterers.

The only way those 26,000 companies and people can make money in their business is to sell meat. And to sell meat they must buy livestock. So all over the country—from Portland, Oregon, to Portland, Maine, from the Rio Grande to the Canadian border—these competing livestock buyers are bidding against each other for the essential material of their businesses—the cattle, calves, hogs, and sheep produced by American farmers and ranchers. The buyers who get that livestock are the ones who bid the highest prices in their particular areas.

IT PAYS TO KEEP FARM ACCOUNTS

By E. C. YOUNG
Professor of Agricultural Economics
Purdue University

Profits are the final test of good farming. Farm accounts give the results of management in dollars and cents. Well kept records are a check on management. They serve as a basis for determining the success or failure of crop and livestock practices. Properly kept, they identify the profitable and unprofitable enterprises and suggest points at which improvements can be made.

Farm records are nothing more than an orderly classification of your financial experience. To be most valuable, they must be simple and they must be used.

Most state colleges furnish simplified account books which can be obtained through your county agent. Sometimes it is better to plan your own accounting system in an ordinary ledger. If all your cash income is deposited in the bank and all your outgo is paid by check, you can use the bank records of your deposits and checks as a basis for your accounts or as a check on your own records. Your records will be more valuable if you include an annual inventory along with your record of cash receipts and expenses.

FEEDING EARLY-LAMBING EWES

To develop good milk-producing ewes, and therefore good early lambs, winter feeding is important. Feed them plenty of top-quality legume hay and just enough grain to keep them in good condition, gaining a little weight. And don't forget exercise. It makes lambing easier and helps save a higher percentage of lambs.

WM. EDGAR RITES HELD

Funeral services were held at 2 p. m. Monday, Jan. 14, from Akers funeral home in San Antonio for William J. Edgar, 81, of 1624 Buena Vista street, that city. Mr. Edgar, a brother-in-law of Judges H. V. Haass Sr. and H. E. Haass of Hondo, died Friday, Jan. 11, 1946, in a San Antonio hospital. Rev. John Scherzer of Grace Lutheran Church officiated and interment was made in Roselawn Burial Park.

Mr. Edgar was a native of London, England, and for some time attended Oxford University. He arrived in New York on June 15, 1880, and came to Castroville, Texas, soon after. There he married Miss Ida M. Haass, only daughter of Valentin and A. Haass, on Sept. 18, 1890, with Rev. W. Hummel officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar made their home in San Antonio for many years, the deceased being a wholesale produce dealer for over 50 years. In 1887, in partnership with Charles Fuos, he engaged in the grocery business in San Antonio on San Pedro Avenue. In 1890 he represented C. F. & H. Guenther, wholesale merchants of that city, drumming trade among the merchants.

In May, 1896, he entered the commission firm of Meyer & Edgar on Cameron street. In 1898 he organized the Edgar Produce Co., handling wholesale fruit and produce, and manufacturing Muncher Kraut on Salado street on I. & G. N. R. R. tracks in his own buildings until recently, bidding on many U. S. government contracts for Irish potatoes, apples, etc., in carload lots. Mr. Edgar also was interested in ranching and owned a farm and pasture three miles south of Castroville.

Mr. Edgar was a charter member of the Castroville Publishing Co., the corporation which established The Castroville Anvil at Castroville in 1886. He had been a subscriber to this paper continuously since its establishment nearly 60 years ago.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Ida Edgar; one son, Herbert E. Edgar; one granddaughter, Mrs. Lorraine Dixon, and one great granddaughter, Miss Carolyn Joyce Dixon, all of San Antonio.

Pvt. Philip R. Nixon of Yancey, who was formerly stationed at Camp Maxey, Texas, now has an overseas address, San Francisco, Calif.

Tomorrow is Forever

by GWEN BRISTOW

THE STORY THUS FAR: Spratt Herlong, motion picture producer, married Elizabeth after her first husband, Arthur Klitredge, had been reported killed in World War I. Elizabeth had been orphaned when a baby and raised by her aunt and uncle in Tulsa, where she met and married Arthur. Shortly after their marriage, Arthur enlisted, and soon afterwards was reported killed. Elizabeth moved to Los Angeles, where she met and married Spratt. Elizabeth overheard her children reading about and laughing at the World War I days. Kessler, a German refugee working on a motion picture script, and his daughter were coming to dinner. Dick was to stay and entertain the daughter.

CHAPTER X

"I'm sorry, Dick," Elizabeth continued with sympathy. "But the boss wants to talk pictures with Mr. Kessler after dinner, and you'll have to take care of the girl."

Cherry and the two guests were already beginning to laugh at Dick's woe-begone face. Dick groaned.

"Can she talk?"

"I don't know, Dick, but there's a musical show downtown."

"Mother, please! Honestly, I—what does she look like?"

Elizabeth started to say, "I've never seen her," when Cherry put in,

"I bet I know. Two yellow braids around her head—"

The others joined, "Maybe you could play some Wagner records for her."

"What about Faust?"

"Silly, Faust is sung in French."

"I bet she's fat and has apple-cheeks."

"She's probably intellectual. Lots of refugees are."

"Talk to her about food. They all like to eat."

"I can't talk to her about anything," stormed Dick. "Mother, I've got a date! Why can't the boss tell Mr. Thingum to leave his daughter at home? Why do I have to—and shut up, all of you. I think you're being unsympathetic and awful."

"Dick, please be a good sport," Elizabeth urged. "This doesn't happen often."

"It does too. You remember that horrible girl from New York who was all teeth that I had to take out when her family had dinner here? But this is worse. A foreigner who can't even talk except to say glub-glub!"

"How do you know she can't talk? Her father speaks English."

Dick groaned.

"Be nice about it, Dick," pled Elizabeth. "She'll probably have a very good time if you'll let her. Remember she's in a strange country, and most of those refugees have had some very unpleasant experiences. Can't you be sorry for them at all?"

"It's easy to be sorry for refugees," said Dick, "when you don't have to put up with them."

Torn between a desire to laugh and tell him he needn't do it, and a realization that Mr. Kessler's daughter must be taken care of somehow if he and Spratt were to have a chance to talk business, Elizabeth did not answer immediately. She was glad to hear the sound of a key in the front door.

"There's the boss," said Cherry, getting up.

"Now we can eat!" Dick exclaimed as though glad to have something to rejoice about. He got up to pour a cocktail for his father.

Spratt came in and greeted them all. "You've no idea what a comfortable picture you make around the fire," he remarked as Elizabeth took his coat and Dick gave him a Martini. "Where's Brian?"

"Having dinner with Peter Stern. Cherry, go to the kitchen and tell them the boss is here."

"What have you been doing?" asked Spratt. "Listening to the radio?"

"No, what's going on?"

"The same, only worse. All hell's loose in Russia. Come on upstairs with me while I get cleaned up," he invited Elizabeth. "Cherry, tell them I'll be ready in fifteen minutes."

"Wait a minute, boss," exclaimed Dick. "I've got something important to ask you. Do I have to take that refugee girl on a date tomorrow night?"

"What refugee girl?"

Spratt drew a long breath and started to laugh. "I forgot to tell you. Kessler's daughter," he said, "is eight years old."

The four youngsters gave long simultaneous whistles. "Oh joy, oh rapture unconfined!" sang Dick. "My life is renewed. I don't have to! Did you hear, everybody? She's eight years old! Why didn't you tell me? What were you doing talking about Russia when all the time you knew that girl was eight years old? Me sitting up here dying and you've got to bring up Russia!"

Elizabeth got out of the room ahead of Spratt and ran up the stairs. He followed her. When he came into his bedroom he found her crumpled up in his reading chair. She was laughing uncontrollably.

Spratt stood watching her in amazement. "Elizabeth, what in the world is the matter with you?"

For a moment she could not answer. With an effort she caught her breath, saying, "N—nothing. Only

I think—I think that for the first time in my life I've nearly had hysterics."

"Elizabeth, what—"

"Please don't pay any attention to me. I'm behaving like a moron. But it is funny, Spratt. We're sitting on the edge of a volcano dangling our legs over the crater, and Dick knows it—I've just heard him talking, so grim and hard he frightened me, and in fifteen minutes nothing was important to him except that that German girl was eight years old and he didn't have to take her out. Oh, that resilience! Did I ever have it, I wonder?" She began to laugh again, this time more softly.

Spratt shrugged, went into the bathroom and turned on the water. When he came out Elizabeth, having made herself be quiet, was wiping her eyes.

Spratt stood over her, shaking his head in confusion. "Did anything happen this afternoon, Elizabeth? You can tell me."

"Not a thing. I came home and got dressed for dinner and lay on the chaise-longue in my room till it Better stick to the plain hand-weave darn for mending small tears or cuts in wool materials. With these you'll be able to match the pattern or grain of material more easily, making mend less likely to show.

When washing woodwork, use a strip of cardboard to protect the wall next to door frames and baseboards from getting splashed.

To press materials that get shiny easily, like white rayon for instance, try using a firm piece of cheese cloth washed until all the sizing is out of it. Dampen slightly before placing over the material to press.

was time to get out the cocktails." She stood up. "I'm sorry for being so foolish, Spratt. But every now and then—well, maybe sometimes you've got to laugh so you won't scream."

"All right," said Spratt, "leave it at that." He never pressed her for explanations, knowing if there was anything she intended to explain he would get it eventually without asking. "You'd better go and do something to your face. You've laughed and cried it streaky."

"All right, I will." Slipping her hands into his, she stood up. "And thank you for being such a calm person. Most men would either have called me a fool or asked a thousand questions."

With an expression of mingled sympathy and amusement, Spratt kissed her. "You're not a fool. Incidentally, you look mighty well in that outfit."

"It's the hostess gown you gave me," Elizabeth reminded him as she went into her room to obliterate the tracks on her face.

Spratt was waiting at the head of the stairs. She smiled at him reassuringly and they started down, and he smiled back. They went in to dinner with the others.

"Oh boy," said Dick as they sat down. "Shrimps to start with. I love 'em."

"So do I," said Spratt, and ate the first one. "Quite a sauce, Elizabeth," he observed. "A decent writer on that picture for a change, and a good dinner!" He grinned at his offspring. "What have the millionaires got that we haven't got?"

"Dyspepsia," said Dick.

At half-past four the following afternoon, Spratt was winding up another conference with the new writer who had come from Germany. Spratt pushed his chair back from his desk and grinned at his colleague.

"That's all for the present, Kessler. We can go into more detail to-night after dinner. And you'll start writing the story-treatment in the morning?"

"Yes, Mr. Herlong." The new writer smiled back, and though his heavy dark beard emphasized his foreignness to this American office and his customary dignity was such that his smile, unlike Spratt's, could hardly be called a grin, he conveyed his acknowledgment of the comradeship that springs up swiftly when two workers discover they can work together. "When you will read the synopsis—I am sorry, the treatment—you will forgive my awkwardness with the language?"

Spratt chuckled. "In the first place, your language is very rarely awkward, and in the second place I can get a dozen writers who know English grammar for one who can tell a story. I don't mind saying,

Kessler, you took a load off my shoulders in our conference yesterday. You understand stories—I wish you could tell me how to make all these English grammar writers understand them."

"Perhaps it is only sometimes viewing situations as other people would view them, and not entirely from the unchanging viewpoint of one's self."

"Am I supposed to tell that to the inhabitants of this ego-ridden capital?" Spratt laughed ruefully and shook his head. "Yes, Lydia?" he said as his secretary came in.

Spratt's visitor answered for him. "He wants to see the sketches, and we are no longer in conference, Miss Fraser." He moved forward in his chair, placed his heavy hand on the head of his heavy cane, and pushed himself into a standing position. It was not an easy movement, but he accomplished it with the skill of long practice. Lydia opened the door for him. A clever girl, she managed to make it look like a gesture of deference instead of necessary aid. Their new writer could not stand without the support of his cane, and since he had only his right hand this made it impossible for him to open a door without pushing a chair toward it so he could sit down. Spratt had risen too, and walked over to the entrance.

"Then I'll pick you up at your office this evening, as close to six-thirty as I can, and we'll go to my home for dinner."

"Thank you, Mr. Herlong." He smiled courteously at Lydia. "And thank you, Miss Fraser."

Lydia went with him to the outer door of the bungalow, then returned to Spratt's inner office with the set sketches in her hand. "A remarkable man, Kessler," Spratt observed as he took the sketches.

"Isn't he? To sink into that script forty-eight hours and come up with a solution. And him half dead, too. Did the Nazis beat him up, or was he in the war, or what?"

"I've no idea. You don't ask about those things, though you can't help wondering. Maybe nothing but an auto accident."

"He does manage to bow from the waist in spite of it. Do you suppose he's going to continue forever calling everybody around here Mr. and Miss?"

Spratt laughed a little, and shrugged. "Probably Germans are very formal. Never mind, I like him."

"So do I," said Lydia.

Meanwhile the subject of their conversation walked to his own bungalow, which was conveniently located next door, since his power of walking was limited to very short distances. Explaining to his secretary that Mr. Herlong was to call for him later, he went through the reception room into his private office beyond.

He went over to the mirror on the wall and stood there looking at his reflection. It was not possible that she could recognize him. Between them lay not merely twenty-four years, but the wreckage made by that shell at Chateau-Thierry, which had destroyed him so terribly that it had taken one of the greatest surgeons in Germany five years to put together the semblance of a body that he now possessed. A makeshift that had been uncertain enough in normal times, this frame of his could hardly, after the effort to which it had been forced when he had to get out of Germany, be expected to last much longer. It was only because he was sure he could not last much longer that he was willing now to let himself see Elizabeth. He had never expected to see her again. In those frightful days in the German hospital, he had not wanted to. He had wanted her to be rid of him, as desperately as he had wanted to be rid of himself. Even now he trembled when he remembered that slow, tortured rebuilding, insertion of metal strips to replace shattered bones, stretching of shrunken muscles, inadequate food and inadequate anesthetics, his own screams and curses at the man who persisted in keeping him alive when he wanted to die.

How that doctor had kept at him, with implacable hands that he himself could see only as instruments of horror, forcing into him the life he did not want, and slowly, through all of it, giving him against his will life that was really life—not mere physical existence, but a personality and a will, a re-creation so profound that it seemed quite natural, when he began to realize what was being given him, that along with all the rest he had a new name. Kessler—thank heaven, he had thought then, it was easy to say, for in those days the new language had seemed very difficult, though now it was so much his own that when he first came back to the United States he found that he had half forgotten the old. The doctor's name was not so easy. Jacoby. How he had dreaded that man at first!

He remembered Jacoby, in the days when he himself did not know a word of German, struggling through a scanty knowledge of English to make him understand what was being done to him, which he did not understand and hated Jacoby for doing, never dreaming then that he was meeting the greatest man he was ever to know in his life.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

OUR TOWN, U.S.A. NEEDS CORRECTING

OUR TOWN, U. S. A. — Our town is developing new peculiarities of postwar life like many another in the nation, I suspect.

Our E bond campaign really failed this month for the first time in history, although we extended the time two weeks, and the campaign leaders worked harder than usual. They got less than half their quota. Nearby in rich and swollen Washington, E bond sales ran only 66 per cent of the quota.

The leaders tell me the failure here was almost entirely in bonds of the smaller denominations. The lower income brackets did not embrace the campaign this time. In one business where the employees had previously bought as much as $2,000, only $400 was purchased.

Yet the people have as much money as ever, and are vying with each other to spend it; one civic organization had a dinner at the best restaurant, and when it came time to pay the bill, the treasurer pushed forward a balance of uncounted bills and said:

"Give this to the help."

A waitress made a $7 tip on another small dinner for seven.

STORES ARE HOLDING BACK SOME SUPPLIES

Bank deposits are up. Sales are up. There is no unemployment; indeed still a shortage of help everywhere. I would say now, four months after the Japanese capitulation, the employment crisis of the war had been relieved only 25 per cent. No competition in labor is anywhere in sight.

We are getting more food in the stores than in some years, but a peculiar situation has developed about this. Although some stock shortages are evident in every line in every store, some dealers have been hesitant about bringing up to the counter what they have in the basement.

It seems that the income tax reduction goes into effect January 1. By holding back goods until next year, sellers can not only avoid the highest war taxes on the income from it; they can save about 15 per cent or more in taxes next year. There will be a flood of food and goods on the market after the first of the year, they say.

Ours is not a strong union town. We have no large factories. Yet everyone is talking about the unions, and attributing to their leadership the new psychology everywhere evident here — that of doing as little work as possible and charging as much for it as possible. This is established routine not only in the few unions but among too many employers as well as employees.

The electrician and plumber complain their small-union men just stand around and smoke cigarettes eight hours a day, ignoring work as much as possible.

"Once they join a union you cannot get any work out of them," one says.

A PROBLEM OF HELP OR EXCESS PROFITS

The men who own small businesses must do, and are doing, all their important work themselves. No one else will carry the work load. There is no such category as the small business "executive" here any more.

A friend of ours had to stay overnight at a nearby town a few days back. Inning with his wife, he asked the innkeeper where he could get breakfast.

"You cannot get it in this town," the innkeeper replied.

His own dining room was closed except for lunch and dinner, because he could get no one to work more than eight hours, and said he could not get sufficient help for two shifts.

There were six dining places in the town. Each one was doing the same thing. Some claimed they were closed because of shortage of points, but you do not need points for orange juice, eggs and coffee.

Local citizens said the restaurants were all making so much money with two meals, they all just lazily decided two were enough to serve the public. My friend went 20 miles before he got his breakfast.

Some new businesses are opening, with good service, trying to establish themselves with popular support; and many old ones (particularly those dealing in autos, gasoline, drugs, etc.), have greatly improved their service.

It all seems to depend on competition. If there is competition in a business, you get a fair price and good service; if not, the consumer is soaked.

I know a landlord, for instance, renting a third floor walk-up office for $100 a month. He asked that the lease omit the usual obligation to furnish janitor service, as during the help shortage, he was not sure he could keep his janitor or get a new one. The janitor was missing after the third week of operations. The tenant had to employ one at $50 a month.

Washington MERRY-GO-ROUND

DREW PEARSON

MISSOURI SNOW SHOVELERS

WASHINGTON. — The problem of snow removal from the sidewalks around the "Summer White House" created something of a problem just before President Truman paid his Christmas visit to Independence, Mo.

At first nothing was done about the snow around the Truman mansion. Secret service agents guarding the house said it was their job to guard, not to shovel. Finally James T. Hopkins, aged 59, got out his horse Dick, aged five, and with a home-made snow plow cleared the snow from the North Delaware street side of the Truman home. But he didn't have time to clear the West Van Horn road side because he had to clear the walks used by children.

One day before Mrs. Truman arrived, however, George Dodsworth, president of the Independence chamber of commerce, called out the chamber's six new directors. He told them that the snow around the "Summer White House" would have to be cleared and their initiation into the chamber would be to do the job.

They did a good job. The walks around the Truman home were thoroughly shoveled.

They did not, however, tackle the drive in the rear of the house. So next morning, two employees from the highway department arrived to clear the driveway. They had shoveled for about 20 minutes when the first lady appeared on the back porch.

"You are shoveling gravel on the grass," admonished Mrs. Truman, always a meticulous housekeeper.

There were some explanations that they had been sent by the highway department to clear the snow.

"I don't care who sent you," replied Mrs. Truman. "I want you to quit."

Which is exactly what they did.

Mrs. Truman left instructions with a secret service agent not to let anyone scoop snow from the drive. And no one has.

THE OTHER LaFOLLETTE

When the name LaFollette is mentioned in Washington, most people think of the senator from Wisconsin, who succeeded his crusading bull-moose father. But another LaFollette, from Indiana, not Wisconsin, who sits in the house of representatives, not the senate, is also attracting more and more attention.

Empty chairs fill up quickly when Rep. Charles LaFollette takes the floor for a speech. Colleagues may sometimes disagree with the two-fisted Indiana Republican, but they agree that what he says usually is interesting and never fails to pack a wallop.

In fact, one of his recent speeches packed such a wallop that conservative colleagues on the Republican side almost swooned. For LaFollette attacked that super-sacred cow, states' rights, and before he was through had virtually de-horned the animal.

"There are no such things as states' rights," declared the red-headed Hoosier. "There are rights of citizens who live within a state. The man who speaks of state sovereignty speaks the language of totalitarianism. There is only individual sovereignty."

Colleagues on both sides of the aisle listened in amazed silence. Only congressmen to answer were two Republicans: Jensen of Iowa and Bates of Massachusetts. Significantly, no whippers came from southern Democrats.

"Did not the sovereignty of the states exist long before the federal government was established?" asked Bates.

"Yes, but man existed long before the state of Massachusetts," shot back LaFollette. "The state of Massachusetts did not create its citizens and does not own them. The citizens own the state. In the continental congress and the convention which created the constitution... the issue was not states' rights."

"The issue was, 'Shall the people determine that they can be better served by a (federal) government with power over the state.' That is the constitutional answer, and it is the only answer that parallels with any idea of the innate dignity and honor of mankind. From that premise I do not yield, nor shall I ever yield, God giving me the strength to retain my intellectual, moral and spiritual integrity."

CAPITAL CHAFF

Since publication of General Marshall's letter to Governor Dewey telling how we were cracking Japanese and German codes, every major government has been changing its codes almost daily. In addition, the best cryptographers in the world are now hard at work in every capital trying to figure out new unbreakable codes. All suspect we have broken their codes too.

The row between Mayor Maestri of New Orleans and Jimmy Comiskey was patched up at a secret caucus.

D'HANIS NEWS

F. J. Carle Buried

Funeral services were held here Monday for Mr. Joe Carle, 81, who passed away Thursday, Jan. 10, 1946, at 6:20 p. m. in the Santa Rosa Hospital, San Antonio. His death was the result of injuries received in an automobile accident a few hours earlier, when the car in which he and his son-in-law, Mr. John B. Nester, were riding collided with a truck about 10 miles west of San Antonio on their way home. News of Mr. Carle's death was a shock to the people of D'Hanis, where he has been respected for decades as a leading citizen and a faithful worker in any project promoting the interests of his church and community.

Frank Joseph Carle was born of pioneer parents at Castroville on May 31, 1864, and came to D'Hanis in 1880 when the family moved here. In February, 1887, he was married to Miss Euphrosine Rely in St. Dominic's Church. To this union five children were born, all of whom survive. Mr. Carle has for many years been vice president and traveling salesman for the D'Hanis Brick and Tile Company. A source of grief during his later years was the death of a grandson, Francis Brown, who was killed in the service of his country during the recent war.

The remains were taken to the Link-Kearns Funeral Home in San Antonio, where the Rosary was recited Saturday evening. On Sunday they were brought to the Horger Funeral Home at Hondo where again the Rosary service was held at 7:30 a. m. At 9:30 the following morning, Jan. 4, the body was brought to Holy Cross Church, where Rev. J. J. Gerbermann, pastor, celebrated a High Mass of Requiem and delivered a touching sermon. Also in the sanctuary was Rev. Vinklarek of Hondo. Interment was in the Holy Cross Cemetery where a large number of friends and relatives gathered, many from a long distance, in spite of cold and rain. Pallbearers were grandsons of the deceased, as follows: Edward and Milton Carle, William and Alvin Brown, Martin and Edgar Joe Carle, and John Joseph Nester.

Survivors include the widow; three daughters, Mrs. Bessie Schawel Knippa, Mrs. Alice Nester of Knippa, and Mrs. Alma Lear of San Antonio; two sons, Richard and Free Carle of San Antonio; 17 grandchildren, 12 great grandchildren, and four brothers, Emil, Frank and Martin of San Antonio, and Louis Carle of D'Hanis.

Mr. Carle was a member of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, St. Joseph's Society, and the United Commercial Travelers. The members of St. Joseph's Society formed a guard of honor at the funeral services.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

DICK: "I wonder how the distillers feel about that new movie built around an alcoholic."

OLD JUDGE: "It's funny you asked that, Dick... I was just reading a piece about it."

DICK: "What did it say?"

OLD JUDGE: "A very sensible statement. It said the beverage distillers are fully aware of this problem and are cooperating in every way possible to help solve it. The alcoholic is to the beverage distilling industry what the reckless driver is to the automobile industry. There is nothing wrong with the automobile, but in the hands of a man who doesn't know how to drive it or is reckless, it becomes a menace. Likewise, it's not the use but the abuse of alcoholic beverages that causes trouble."

DICK: "Wonder why it is most men can drink moderately and others can't?"

OLD JUDGE: "Intensive research at a great university has shown that most excessive drinkers are really sick people. They are suffering from some physical, social or emotional upset. And great strides have been made in developing clinical methods of helping these unfortunate people."
